

Is a not for profit national organization dedicated to children with cancer or other serious illness. When a child reaches a treatment milestone, they are given a special bead symbolic of the procedure they've just completed. These beads become a unique necklace, and represent courage and strength as well as being an inspiration to others.

When: 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 3,

Learn how to become involved in Beads of Courage at an open session with noted California bead artist Sharon Peters. The event will be held 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 3, at Studio 34 Beads, 34 Elton St.

For more information on the local volunteer group, call (585) 737-5858.

Glass bead artists use torches to create beads. Design a bead and sponsor a bead artist to create it. All beads will be donated to Beads of Courage.

Location: Studio 34 Creative Arts Center in the Neighborhood of the Arts, 34 Elton Street. www.studio34beads.com
